Rosehill theatre • film • music • comedy • talks proud to be associated with Cumbria Life

Vintage wedding for Charlotte and Alex

Charlotte White and Alex Sharphouse chose a Victorian theme for their wedding at Colton Church near Ulverston.

Guests in vintage outfits were treated to a display of working steam engines at the couple's Old Hall Farm at nearby Bouth.

Charlotte learned to ride side saddle so she could wear a Victorian habit, which was made by designer Angy Morton of Romantique Couture at Newby Bridge.

Charlotte, who is operations manager at Cartmel Sticky Toffee Pudding Company, and Alex, who works at Lakeside and Haverthwaite Railway and is also a self-employed steam engineer, bought the farm three years ago with the aim of farming traditionally.

They have native breed cattle, Gloucester Old Spot pigs, free range hens and a pair of 19-hand Shire horses. They farm using the horses to plough and harrow; steam driven engines and threshing machines; and vintage farm machinery.

They will be showcasing their farm at open days following the farming year, with the next taking place on September 11 and 12.

Bride and groom Charlotte White and Alex Sharphouse

David and Jean Rogers and Jenny Weir

Bride Charlotte riding side saddle

One of the steam-driven machines

James and Kate Jenkins with Will and Grace Jenkins

Julie Shaw, Ernie Wilson, Robert Rhodes, Louise Hadwin and Jenny Weir

Helen Dixon and Noreen Atkinson